INTELLIGENCE REVIEW COURSE

16 - 27 April 1962

Dates for the Intelligence Review Course, formerly announced as 9-20 April 1962, have been changed to 16-27 April 1962. This is a full-time course, and classes will meet in Room 1-A-13, Headquarters Building.

The course gives an overview of the status of the intelligence profession, covers new intelligence developments within CIA, and presents an opportunity for students from various offices to discuss particular office problems in intelligence. One session is devoted to a summary of recent developments within Soviet Russia and in International Communism. Senior officers from the various components of CIA and representatives of the intelligence community discuss current developments and problems. Panel discussions deal with broad areas of collection, production, and support. Panels and lectures are followed by discussion periods. In addition, seminar groups choose topics for discussion and final papers.

Prerequisites are completion of the Intelligence Orientation Course and a minimum of five years of duty with the Agency or equivalent in experience and training. Further information on course content may be obtained from [REDACTED] extension 3343. Training Officers are requested to forward Form 73's to the Registrar/TR no later than 6 April.
